

Emypeople SafeGuardPro Instruction Manual - Windows

Who is it for?

SafeGuardPro is a web-filtering solution offered by Emypeople as proxy service for Windows devices. A modified Firefox browser is available for Android devices also, although as of March 2016, that configuration has not been tested and approved by Weatec. The proxy installation can be enforced by Emypeople's Dynamite Protector software. In testing, the solution worked OK, except for some security errors due to using a proxy service. SafeGuardPro tested well, although the categories are not configurable by the end user. Since the internet connection is dependent upon the proxy server, you will lose your connection to the internet if Emypeople's proxy server goes offline. Also, speed normally takes a hit when using proxy connections.

Pros:

- Filtered well in testing
- Anabaptist-run company behind the solution
- Image-scanning technology

Cons:

- Dependence on proxy server introduces single point of failure
- A proxy connection slows down internet speed
- Might be phased out in favor of Emypeople's new SafeSentryPro

Note: After testing, Emypeople SafeGuardPro has been approved as an acceptable content filter according to the requirements set forth in the Weaverland Conference Electronic Technology Usage Guidelines. Please remember that no filter can be guaranteed to filter out all objectionable content; therefore the Weatec Accountability Software must be installed on all devices in order to be in compliance with Weaverland Conference guidelines. The accountability software logs all web traffic, thus fostering brotherhood accountability. So even if objectionable content is missed by SafeGuardPro, the content will still trigger a flag on the accountability server. Use the Weaverland Conference template as a minimum; there is nothing preventing you from choosing stricter settings.
